

Notes on Contributors

Michael Aird lives and writes in White Rock, British Columbia.

Arnab Chakladar is an Assistant Professor in the Department of English and Comparative Literature at the University of Colorado, Boulder.

Tim Christensen teaches in the Department of English at Otterbein College. Recent publications include “The ‘Bestial Mark’ of Race in The Island of Dr. Moreau,” which appeared in Criticism, and “Bearing the White Man’s Burden: Misrecognition and Cultural Difference in E. M. Forster’s A Passage to India,” which will appear in the upcoming issue of Novel: A Forum on Fiction.

Sara Jamieson holds a SSHRC postdoctoral fellowship in the Department of English at the University of Calgary. Her research interests include the poetry of mourning by Canadian women and representations of aging and old age in Canadian texts.

Chelva Kanaganayakam is a Professor of English at the University of Toronto. He is also the author of Counterrealism and Indo-Anglian Fiction (2002), and editor of Lutesong and Lament (2001), a collection of Tamil writing.

Heidi Slettedahl Macpherson is Professor of American Literature at the University of Central Lancashire, England. She is the author of Women’s Movement: Escape as Transgression in North American Feminist Fiction (Rodopi, 2000), Courting Failure (University of Akron Press, 2007), and the co-editor of Transatlantic Studies (UPA, 2000), New Perspectives in Transatlantic Studies (UPA, 2002), and Britain and the Americas (ABC-Clio, 2005). She writes frequently on North American women’s writing.

Paul Maltby is Professor of English at West Chester University. His areas of interest include postmodern fiction; postmodern critique; and postmodern film. His publications include The Visionary Moment: A Postmodern Critique (SUNY Press Series in Postmodern Culture, 2002).

Erik Martiny, who lectures in Aix-en-Provence, has published articles in French periodicals such as New Standpoints and the CNED, and an article on Frank O’Hara in The Cambridge Quarterly.

Contributors

Rod McGillis is a Professor of English at the University of Calgary. He has published extensively in the field of children's literature and is currently at work on a project investigating masculinity in the 'B' western film.

Michael McIrvin teaches writing and literature at the University of Wyoming. He is the author of Optimism Blues: Poems Selected and New (2003), Wither American Poetry? (1999) and other books.

Shetty Parinitha is Reader in the Department of English at the University of Mangalore. Her areas of specialization are Comparative Literature and gender studies.

Julie Rak is an Associate Professor in the Department of English and Film Studies at the University of Alberta. She is the author of Negotiated Memories: Doukhobor Autobiographical Discourse (UBC Press, 2004) and the editor of Auto/Biography in Canada: Critical Directions (Wilfrid Laurier UP, 2005). Her current project is about autobiography, biography and memoir for mass-markets in North America.