

Rituals

I always return to my rituals—my walks in the evening alone—and when I cannot live by touch,
I live by telephone,
transforming all your words and glances into sparks along a wire, received and returned with the coldness of properly distanced desire.

TOM LIPS