

MSc and PhD in Medical Education

The University Ambrosiana in Milan, Italy offers graduate degrees in Medical Education. These distributed education (distance and on-site) programs equip medical and allied health professionals with knowledge, attitudes and skills essential to medical education and research.

MSc

Foundations of Medical Education, Curriculum Design and Evaluation, Teaching and Instructional Methods, Research Methods and Design in Medical Education, Measurement, Assessment and Psychometrics Learning and Cognition, Leadership in Health Care Organization

PhD

Curriculum Development, Advanced Research and Evaluation, Learning Theories and Cognition, Research Methods and Design in Medical Education, Psychometric Theory and Practice, History and Philosophy of Medical Education, Dissertation

Participants begin the programs online, conferring with fellow learners and faculty. Courses are designed to meet the needs of advanced students pursuing graduate studies. Learners build on previous knowledge and skills to become specialized in areas of course content and pursue research of interest to them.

Visit:

www.internationalgme.org

University Ambrosiana
International Graduate Medical Education Program